Unfazed by the Pandemic, Flight Attendant Publishes Travel Journal

NEW YORK CITY, NY --- Impacted by the pandemic and her profound passion for flying, Filipino-American author/flight attendant Lia Ocampo inspires aviation and travel enthusiasts with her latest book, I Love Flying: An Inspirational Journal for Your Flying and Travel Adventures.

"I created the I Love Flying journal to honor those who have lost their lives to COVID-19, to admire the frontline workers in the aviation and travel industries, to encourage globetrotters to continue their passion for travel, to inspire people to explore the world, to advocate safe flight, to uplift the spirit of traveling, and to shed some hope in these challenging times," shares Ocampo.

The author compiled her favorite travel photographs and turned them into a book of inspirational quotes, with reflections on the beauty of flying, traveling, and life. Readers will find the photographic pages awe-inspiring and captivating. The book would make one wish to fly to a place or country, find a new adventure, fill in the bucket list, and reminisce. Ocampo expresses optimism with the aviation and tourism industries bouncing back. She notes that one's next travel adventure could still be enjoyable with the proper safety measures and protocols.

The picturesque journal is now available on Amazon, Barnes & Noble, Ingram Spark, Blurb, at Where Traveler (JFK Airport Terminal 5), and Made in Jax (Jacksonville International Airport).
